

Mental Health Toolkit for Parents & Caregivers

75% of mental illnesses begin by age 25, yet most people do not start treatment until 8-11 years after their symptoms begin. How can you help support your kids' mental health?

Warning Signs

Warning signs your child may need mental health treatment:

- Change in sleep or appetite
- Irritability
- Lack of interest or pleasure
- Fatigue, difficulty concentrating
- Unexplained physical symptoms
- Actively or passively talking about wanting to die
 - Ask "Are you thinking of harming yourself?" and do NOT leave them alone if the answer is yes. Call 988.

Conversation Starters

- Share observations: "I notice..."
- Ask non-judgmental questions: "Tell me more..."
- Validate & encourage vulnerability: "It sounds like you're feeling..."
- Provide hope: "There are things we can do to help you."
- Ask how to help & create an action plan: "What can I do to support you? Our next step..."

Grounding Techniques

- Box breathing
- Mindfulness meditation
- Progressive muscle relaxation
- Journaling
- 5-4-3-2-1: list 5 things you see, 4 things you hear, 3 things you feel, etc.

Resources

- 988 (national suicide hotline)
- psychologytoday.com (find a therapist)
- www.findtreatment.samhsa.gov (resource for low-cost care)
- The National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI)
 - Treatment locator: 1-617-704-NAMI
 - NAMI info helpline: 1-800-950-NAMI

Building resilient communities through mental health education & awareness. Mental Health Collaborative is a 501c3 nonprofit that provides evidence-based mental health literacy education to schools, organizations, and communities.

